Five tattoos only clue, police yet to identify body found last year

SAGAR RAJPUT MUMBAI, AUGUST 27

NEARLY EIGHT months ago, the Juhu police recovered the body of a man in a semi-decomposed state near Irla nullah. Over a hundred people have been interrogated since, and all CCTV cameras installed near the spot have been scanned carefully, but the deceased — suspected to be in his early 30s - remains uniden-

The only clue the police have are five tattoos on his body, including two names tattooed on his chest and one on his forearm.

The body was found near Irla nullah on December 31, 2017. Seven hours after the body was recovered, the Juhu police registered a case of murder and destruction of evidence with postmortem reports from Cooper Hospital revealing that the man had died of a head injury.

The Juhu police formed four teams, each headed by a police sub-inspector, to investigate the case. The Crime Branch started a parallel probe in the case. "To begin with, we scrutinised the CCTV footage from around Irla. As we couldn't find anything, we started concentrating on the five tattoos on the man's body," said an officer.

The tattoos include a heartshaped one on his forearm with the word 'Avatar'. The words 'Pravin' and 'Parveen' were tattooed on his chest, said police. The police found a steel pendant attached to a black thread on his body. A steel bracelet on his right wrist and a black string around his right ankle were also found. said investigators.

"From the look of the deceased and the bracelet, it appears that the man is a Punjabi. We approached several gurdwaras in the city to get clues on his identity. We circulated pictures of the deceased and the tattoos to gurdwaras in Punjab, Haryana, Delhi and Rajasthan,' said an officer.

The investigator tried to trawl through social media profiles by the name of Avatar, Pravin and

29-year-old man stabbed to death

Thane: A 29-year-old man was stabbed to death allegedly by three men after they had an argument on Sunday. Ulhasnagar police said the accused have been identified as Sunil Prajapati, Nitin Chaudhary and Ravi laiswar.

"The deceased, identified as Chandrakant More, worked as a salesman. He was out with his friends when an argument broke out between two groups. After some time, More and his friends walked away," said a police officer.

But the three accused followed More and his friends and attacked More with knives and rods, the police said. "More was stabbed multiple times and succumbed to the injuries before he could be taken to a hospital," the officer said.

"We have lodged a case of murder and provocation by insult against the three accused who are all residents of Ulhasnagar. They were taken in custody on Monday morning. We are investigating further to find out what led to the violence," a senior officer said.

2 major organisers won't celebrate Dahi Handi

Navi Mumbai: Two major Dahi Handi organisers at Koper Khairane in Navi Mumbai have decided not to celebrate the festival on September 3 in wake of the recent agitation by the Maratha community demanding quota in education and jobs. Koper Khairane had witnessed violent protests by the community.

The decision was announced in a social coordination meeting attended by all stakeholders – held by the Navi Mumbai police on Monday. "We have been organising 'Samanway' meetings to address the complaints of all residents. On Monday, among other things, Dahi Handi was also discussed," said a police officer.

NCP legislator Narendra Patil, who also attended the meeting. said: "Vaibhav Naik of Kalash Udyan and Ashish Achare of the Teen Taaki ground, both from Koper Khairane, declared that they will not celebrate Dahi Handi."

"The area had seen a lot of violence between two communities during the Maratha agitation. We are working on trust-building exercises in the area... So, we felicitated the two organisers for the decision," said a police officer. ENS

IN THE run-up to the release of her film Manto, actor and acclaimed filmmaker Nandita Das exhorted students at the Tata Institute of Social Sciences (TISS) on Monday to develop 'Mantoiyyat' in themselves, a free spiritedness, fearlessness and the ability to speak bluntly. Students in contemporary India should be nonconformist and courageous, she said.

Speaking at the Professor Rajni Kothari Lecture series at the School of Development Studies in TISS on the topic 'Experiencing Manto', Das said her film on Sadat Hassan Manto would be the most powerful interpretation of this spirit of the celebrated Indian-born writer who migrated to Lahore.

Das said the idea behind her film is to "celebrate people like Manto who have existed in all eras and who were misunderstood during their times".

"As a nation, we self-censor ourselves constantly. But Manto spoke his mind and he was even tried for obscenity six times. He argued his own cases. If I had to make a film with the same topic without Manto, it would have seemed didactic. Some would say it is agenda driven, especially in times when the lines between news and views are blurred, when any commentary is going to polarise, so I took refuge behind Manto," she added. Manto's words remain relevant even today, said Das. "Manto was born a Muslim but he went beyond religion and identity. He talked of humanity He would say 'don't say ek lakh Hindu mare, yah ek lakh Musalman mare, yeh kaho ek lakh insaan mare'."

Danish Husain, who plays Manto's friend in the movie, said Manto's stories are stunning, living with readers for years.
